Registration is now open for the Louisiana Envirothon environmental competition

BATON ROUGE – Registration for the 2014 Louisiana Envirothon environmental competition to be held, Sat., March 8 at the LSU Ag Center Burden Center in Baton Rouge, is now open.

The Louisiana Envirothon is an environmental problem-solving competition for students in grades 6 -12. Teams train and compete by demonstrating their knowledge of environmental science and natural resource management. The competition focuses on five natural resource areas: soils and land use, aquatic resources, forestry, wildlife, and a current environmental issue. The 2014 current environmental issue is Sustainable Local Agriculture/Locally Grown. Teams also present a solution to an environmental problem related to the current issue through an oral presentation.

Envirothon is open to students in grades 6 through 12 who register as a team of five. Students can be from the same school or associated with an organized group such as Science Club, Future Farmers of America or 4-H. It's fun and allows the students a hands-on opportunity to learn more about protecting and working within natural resources. The competition fosters critical thinking, cooperative problem solving and decision making skills. Winners receive special recognition and monetary prizes and may represent Louisiana in the North American Envirothon Competition.

If you have a team that is interested, please register as soon as possible as training sessions are being scheduled. For more information on the Envirothon, to register or if you would like to help sponsor the event, please go to www.deq.louisiana.gov/envirothon and like us on Facebook.
